When the first man to perish by the new trical execution is shocked into the hereafter by the deadly voltage of the wire the public will probably be told by a press faithful to its duties of the success or failure of the new method.

The bill proposed by Mr. Stress in the Albany Legislature, providing for the presence of reporters at electric execu-tions, was recommitted. This is a wrong. It is unjust, because the community has a right to know how its affairs are administered. The disposition made of criminals is certainly an affair of the community, and one in which it has a most legitimate interest. It is fallacious to say that it is enough for it to know that men deserving such fate are legally done to death. It is against the whole American spirit to conduct executions with a secrecy which savors of the methods of sutocratic

Let in the reporters. The first execution by electricity is something which be more minutely reported than was ever execution yet. The electric death power, as it is to be applied in New York prisons, is too experimental not to have all its details known and weighed. Let us be civilized, at least.

OF THE EARTH, EARTHY.

Let a Dutch housewife wander through the streets of New York and by the time she had half completed the filthy circuit ane would be a jabbering idiot. Her mind and habit could not endure the dirt. Godliness is next to cleanliness in the Dutch housewife. The average New Yorker, especially one "to the manner born," could not possess this ultra sense of perfect cleanliness without being "freak." It would be unnatural.

BY A BLOWN-OUT MATCH.

A recent trial developed a singular form of oath. Chinamen were involved in the suit. One of them, when called to the witness stand, lit and then blew out a match. This action committed him to truth or perjury.

The Children's Rights bill became law this morning. Of the many triumphs in favor of right and justice which can be credited to THE Evening Wonld, none appeals more strongly to the public than the passage of this bill and its subsequent enrolment on the statutes of New York State. Both houses passed the bill with prac-
